Great South Land

15th January 2009

Terence Kong

SmartWin

Dear Terence,

I am writing to express concern that the agreed payment to Hunt Energy to allow drilling to commence on Bellevue #1 has not been paid by the due date of 14th January 2009. This non-payment may result in the Hunt Energy rig being removed from site next Monday (at $6m loss to us) and has the potential to put this entire project in jeopardy. Before my return to London, we had an agreement that, before Stuart Cheng would put in any further funding, we would have to match the $1.1million. This has now occurred and we have provided you with the paid invoices as proof that GSLM has more than matched your payment. I cannot now see any impediment to this promised amount being paid.

I understand that you were hoping to enter a "turn-key" contract with one organization for this drilling. As Hunt Energy are not in a position to offer this arrangement, the only party that can offer you an immediate start to drilling is Great South Land Minerals; as we will be obtaining funding for the remainder of the costs associated with this well. One payment to GSLM of $1,114,216 can get drilling under way as soon as contractors and suppliers are paid and deliveries are made to the Bellevue site. A comprehensive spreadsheet of all costs associated with this drilling program has been developed and referred to you. We have responded promptly to all queries on the content of this spreadsheet and the associated invoices. Due to the high cost of the delays to payments, Bellevue # 1 can no longer be completed within the original budget discussed with you in early 2008. GSLM has arranged avenues of additional financing to cover this shortfall and you have been given details of these funding sources.

Our new Drilling Engineer, Edward McNally RDA BSc CPEng, has examined the costings and confirmed drilling is able to proceed within this budget. Mr McNally has 37 years experience in the Oil and Gas industry and has the background and skills to be able to assess a drilling operation. In our most recent press release to the market, Mr McNally stated "I have reviewed the program and found comprehensive costings and strategies in place to complete the first well in the planned timeframe and concluded that the targets are valid and obtainable."

GSLM is able to offer SmartWin a partnership in a drilling program commencing next week; only if payment of the invoices described on the spreadsheet are made today. Any further delay in payment of Hunt Energy's account will cause their withdrawal from Bellevue and risks loss of future access to their #3 rig. As we cannot afford this further set-back, it may be necessary for GSLM to seek a new joint venture partner if you do not wish to fund this drilling program. If the monies owed had been forwarded when requested in September 2008 (under the terms of our contract) we would have saved over $1.5m in standby fees and drilling of Bellevue could have been completed. As it is clearly documented on the spreadsheet sent to you, the current drill site has incurred over $10m in expenditure in seismic, discovery and preparation costs. GSLM has demonstrated the ability to fund ongoing projects and meet our 1:1 funding obligations and currently holds over USD$5m in disposable assets in our subsidiaries.

Please advise me immediately if you are able to proceed with payment of the agreed amount to cover all of the listed accounts today. If you do not wish to continue to provide funding and proceed with the $45m joint venture, please also let me know today so that alternative funding arrangements can be urgently pursued.

Yours Sincerely,

Malcolm Bendall

Chief Executive Officer
