Hindenburg investment Research specializes in forensic research and activist short-selling. While Hindenburg is a newly formed research boutique, our experience in the investment management industry spans over a decade, with a historical focus on buy side equity, credit, and derivatives analysis.

While we use fundamental analysis to aid our investment decision-making, we believe the best edge can be had by uncovering hard-to-find information from atypical sources. In particular, we look for situations where companies may have any combination of (i) accounting irregularities (ii) bad actors in management or key service provider roles (iii) undisclosed related-party transactions (iv) or illegal/unethical business or financial reporting practices.
